

Home to Gabriele Salvatori, CEO of the eponymous family-run Italian brand that specialises in beautiful marble, this apartment in Brera, a fashionable district in Milan, is testament to the artistic possibilities of this most luxurious of materials. Designed by long-time Salvatori collaborator, architect and stylist Elisa Ossino, the interior marries a respect for the original period features of the property with a love of pushing the boundaries of design. 'Our idea was to really highlight the use of marble,' she says. 'Salvatori's world revolves around it, and this space was the perfect place to experiment.' (salvatori.it)

Living room (left and previous spread) Two artworks created by Elisa Ossino using white Bianco Carrara, pink Rosa Portogallo, green Verde Alpi and yellow Travertino Giallo marbles dominate this room. The 'Love Me, Love Me Not' Noir St Laurent marble coffee table by Michael Anastassides is topped with stone bottles from the 'Omaggio a Morandi' collection, also by Elisa Ossino for Salvatori. The red sofa is the 'Ile Club' by Piero Lissoni for Living Divani, while the small 'Dritto' side table (left) is also by Lissoni, for Salvatori. The chairs are a fibreglass design by Merat and a bowl-shaped seat with leather straps by Bo Bardi

Above An 'LC7' chair by Charlotte Perriand for Cassina sits in the hallway, and in the corner of the living room there's a 'Trunk' daybed by David Lopez Quincoces for Living Divani, with a 'Love Me, Love Me Not' Verde Alpi marble side table by Michael Anastassiades for Salvatori
