

THE FUTURE IS...

WORKING FROM HOME

Even if your dining or kitchen table is your desk, it's worth investing in an adjustable chair and task lamp that can be moved easily at the end of the day. If space isn't an issue and you have your own study, we have some covetable kit to make you proud to take those Zoom calls

FOUNDER, VERY GOOD & PROPER

Even when Covid-19 seems like a distant memory, it's safe to assume many of us will still be spending the majority of our time working at home. People have had to adapt their domestic set-up, such as the kitchen table or a bedroom, into an office that they work at during the day and transform again in the evening. We have launched a new collection that explores the idea of furniture that welcomes both work and rest, with designs that can adapt easily between the two.

'HD' pedestal chair by John Tree, £329,
Very Good & Proper (verygoodandproper.shop)

'Orson' desk in 'Walnut' by Matthew Hilton for De La Espada, £3,876; 'Edit' swivel chair in 'Copenhagen Grey' by Says Who, £499; 'Saber' LED desk lamp in 'Gold', £129, all Heal's (heals.com) ED
